

Facebook Communication Center

Functional Requirements:

- Post and comment type of functionality.
- Timeline for different clients/friends (where previously written posts can be viewed).
- It should be a Server driven application where multiple clients can connect to the server and communicate: To accomplish this any technology can be used, ex. Sockets.
- Each Post should have an age associated with it (1 min. ago, 30 mins ago, 2 hours ago) and it should be automatically updated every minute without page refresh.
- Refreshing the page should retain the posts.

UI requirements:

- It could be a single page application or multi-page application (Different page for Posting and Timeline)
- It should have a good user experience in terms of interactions: Look and feel must be smooth.
- At least have a basic input box and post button.
- Nested kind of Post and Comment display.

Check attached file as to how the layout must look. Ignore the likes.

Musicademy

13 hours ago

Do you think that people going through a divorce should be allowed to be on a worship team?

Like · Comment · Share

👍 9 people like this.

Dave Dringenburg This is the most absurd question I've ever read. Should we allow any person to lead worship if we think they're sinners? Those saying no should take a long look in the mirror and put down their stones. Worry about the plank in your own eye before pointing out the splinter in someone else's.

Like · Reply · 🗨️ 15 · 13 hours ago via mobile

Miguel Colon replied · 3 Replies

Dave Dringenburg I don't want to lay into the people saying no (I see some comments have been deleted), but there is a huge disconnect from scripture in saying 'no' to this. The Bible is full of sinners doing Gods work. Think about David: adulterer, murderer (Bathsheba... See More

Like · Reply · 🗨️ 4 · 12 hours ago via mobile

Musicademy It's interesting to see that comments have been deleted. But maybe that is part of the beauty of a discussion like this. We read a question, have an immediate reaction to it but when later we go back and read others' viewpoints we perhaps realise that the issue is more complex than we first thought.

Like · 56 minutes ago

Write a reply...

Sa Rah I sure hope so! I am going through a divorce and I'm part of worship team, I lead worship every third week. I'm glad that God loves me and my worship no matter what I'm going through, he receives my broken heart and makes me whole! 😊 xx

Like · Reply · 🗨️ 11 · 13 hours ago via mobile

Tim Ashburner "Let he who is without sin cast the first stone"

Like · Reply · 🗨️ 12 · 13 hours ago

Dave Jones I'm guessing it would depend on the reason. If it was a accepted Biblical reason then why not? They could probably do with the help, support, fellowship and prayers of the team.

Like · Reply · 🗨️ 9 · 13 hours ago

Cody Patterson Musicademy Do you think God can use people that are struggling? Everyone has things going on in their life at all times, sometimes really bad sometimes life is easier. If the person on the team is trying to keep focused on Christ then yes of course. Divorce is wrong Biblically but that doesn't mean that the person on the team initiated it, or even that they wanted it. People always make mistakes, if we took everyone off the team that made any mistake then we would have no team, not even a leader.

Like · Reply · 🗨️ 9 · 13 hours ago

Emily Brake One of the worship leaders in my team, amazing guy, totally sold out for Christ had the experience of his wife leaving him. She divorced him, not his choice. He served that whole